Excerpt: . viii the ruins of the muristan and the mosques of omar and el aksa The ruins in the foreground mark where stood the fine Hospice of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, a building of great magnificence, erected 1120 A.d. The Order was founded on the establishment of the Christian kingdom in Jerusalem, and in close connection with it was the Abbey of St. Marie la Grande, where female pilgrims were entertained and housed by the sisterhood. A few years ago these ruins were all covered with rubbish. The Sultan gave the site to the Prussian Government; but he had also given it to the French! Neither power seemed to care much about it until after the French defeat at Sedan. The French agent on the spot then determined to take possession of it, and one fine morning he, with official cavass...
