Nothing is more certain than that Mr. Harriss generous plan will not only avail these and others who received favorable mention, but the plan itself is one that will be emulated, and thus a plethora of good material for the stage must of necessity come to the surface. Martin Beck, whose extraordinary rise in the last few years is discussed elsewhere in this volume, has also shown a fine discernment and much public spirit in awarding prizes and guaranteeing production, during the Actors Fund Fair, of a number of one-act playlets, a procedure which can only serve to give a great stimulus to vaudeville, the field in which Mr. Beck labors so intelligently....
